

4/4/2012

We really had the best Easter gift we could get. Jordan had another MRI on March 30th, and we usually have to wait for a couple of days before we get the results, but our son Michael got a call that same evening from the Doctor and he told him that he had to call him because even with the dye they injected for the test there was no sign of the tumor. Needless to say we were all chocked up with this good news and Jordan was really happy.

Our thanks go out to everyone for their prayers and good thoughts for Jordan. Please keep her in your prayers so the tumors go in complete remission.

Thank you,

Carol and Tom McCue..